NEW EDITION NOW READY.

THE CORRESPONDENCE OF
 Thomas Carlyle and Ralph Waldo Emerson:
 1834 to 1872.

With fine portraits of Carlyle and Emerson, etched for this work. Edited by CHARLES ELIOT NORTON. 2 vols., 12mo, gilt top, rough edges, $4; half calf, $8.

A remarkably piquant and brilliant series of letters, crowded with interesting details of English, Continental, and American literary society, and a thousand other thoroughly charming themes, and giving the intimate thoughts, fancies, and observations of the two most original men of the century. Never before was such a wonderful correspondence printed, extending over a period of nearly forty years, and overflowing with personal pith and point. It is history and biography in one, flavored with the gossip of philosophers, and it will be eagerly perused by all classes of readers. These original contributions to modern biography and philosophy have been carefully edited by Professor Charles Eliot Norton, who was specially designated for the work by both Emerson and Carlyle. It is doubtless the most interesting correspondence ever published.

"Each of the delightful letters in these volumes is a chapter of wisdom."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

"It is almost a unique work in presenting the unreserved thoughts of perhaps the two most remarkable men of their age in either hemisphere."—Hartford Courant.

"The letters have an unusual literary range and finish, . . . and having been penned carefully and frankly, reflect their writers almost as well as if they had exchanged autobiographies."—Cincinnati Com. Gazette.

"The friendly, hearty, wise, encouraging, bright and beautiful letters which passed across the Atlantic between the philosopher of Concord and the philosopher of Chelsea. They form a marvellously interesting memorial of the two leading thinkers of their time. . . . Here a picture in the words of some famous man; here the description of some masterly book; here a poem; here a discourse of the loftiest themes. No such correspondence has been given to the world within a generation as this between Emerson and Carlyle, and it is sure to meet with a wide acceptance."—Philadelphia Press.

"It would be hard to find letters more graceful in style, more rich in ideas, and more fragrant in all that makes friendship sacred, than this correspondence. . . . They talked to each other with all the best faculties of mind and heart alert and active."—Christian at Work.

"A rare and long-to-be-historical contribution—strikingly and obviously remarkable."—N. Y. Times.

"It was a most choice friendship of two highest, rarest souls—their letters show this as nothing else can show it."—Philadelphia Times.

"They will make themselves everywhere read; partly for their superior tone of thinking and feeling, and partly for the details, so dear to a gossiping world, of many a social, political, and literary circle of famous men and women, now departed or soon to vanish from the earth."—Springfield Republican.

"Fascinating as revelations of character."—N. Y. Star.

"It will be for long a source of enjoyment and discussion to students of character and literature."—New York Tribune.

"It is a meeting of the Titans, a banquet of the gods. And through all the lofty discourse of things spiritual and eternal runs the gleaming woof of wit and humor, of flying thought, straight from the blue ether, of graceful epigram, set off against the darker threads of sorrow and affliction, of genius beating its wings against the bars of grim necessity, of the unutterable pathos of life that finds only faint expression even in the intercourse of friends. It is not a book to review, but one to cherish, to read again and again, and to take into one's heart of hearts as a revelation."—Boston Traveller.

The Siege of London.

By HENRY JAMES, JR. 1 vol., 12mo, $1.50.

"The Siege of London" is a very piquant story of America in Europe, with delicious comparative studies of the two civilizations, illustrated by finely and firmly drawn characters. The Boston Gazette calls the latter "the wittiest work this author has yet done. They are exquisitely clever in every part, and amid their never-failing brilliancy one hardly knows where to select the brightest things for extracts."

THIRD EDITION OF

Short Sayings of Great Men.

With Historical and Explanatory Notes, by SAMUEL ARTHUR BENT, A.M. $3.

"The work is one of astonishing research. It is a most fascinating contribution."—Philadelphia Press.

"Curious, instructive, and scholarly."—Cincinnati Commercial.

"It is an exceedingly interesting volume, and fills a long-existing gap in our literature."—HON. S. A. GREEN, Mayor of Boston.

NOTES IN SEASON.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. will publish at once, in one volume, "The Life of Bishop Wilberforce," which has made so great a stir in England on account of the editor's indiscretions.

D. APPLETON & Co. will issue at once Rev. Dr. Morgan Dix's Lectures on "The Calling of a Christian Woman, and her Training to Fulfil it," delivered recently, and which have attracted considerable attention.

BAKER, PRATT & Co. will issue at once "Young Japan—Yokohama and Yedo: A Glance at the Progress of Japan during a Period of Twenty-one Years," by John R. Black. This work is an important one in every respect, and, as the N. Y. Herald says, "as a narrative of the events which occurred between 1858 and 1879, it is remarkable for its accuracy."

D. LOTHROP & Co. will issue this month a new volume in the Magna Charta series entitled the "Door-yard Folks," by Miss Amanda B. Harris, illustrated by Garrett; and two juveniles, "Round the Ranch," by Belle-Kellogg Towne, and "Little Brown Top," by Rev. E. A. Rand. They have in press "Imagination and other Essays," by Dr. George McDonald, which was recently published in London under the title of "Orts."

LEE & SHEPARD will publish shortly "Travels and Observations in the Orient," by the Hon. Walter Harriman, ex-governor of New Hampshire, who went abroad on a flying trip a year ago, and travelled through Palestine on horseback; also "Hymns of Jesus," by the Rev. William T. Sleeper, a series of sacred poems, with illustrations from etchings by Bida, and a revised edition, of Dolbear's "Telephone and the Art of Projection."

GINN, HEATH & Co. will publish at once the chapters on "The Anglo-Saxon and Norman Periods," from the fourth revised edition of Thomas Arnold's "Manual of English Literature," also a "Syllabus of a Course in the Theory of Equations." They have in preparation a work on "The Aim of Industrial Education in the Public Schools," with a review of its proper relation to regular studies, by Prof. H. H. Straight, of the State Normal School, Oswego, New York.

HENRY HOLT & Co. will issue next week Henry W. Lucy's novel, "Gideon Fleyce," as the initial number of The Leisure Moment Series. The series will consist of good light literature, principally novels, and will be printed on good paper in clear type. The books will have heavy paper covers bearing a tasteful design. The prices will be only a trifle higher than those of the various pamphlet "Libraries," ranging from twenty-five to forty-five cents. They have also in preparation the "Lectures on Preaching," delivered to the students of theology at Yale, in January and February, 1882, by E. G. Robinson, President of Brown University.

ROBERTS BROTHERS will publish on the 15th inst., as the initial volume in their new series, Famous Women, the "Life of George Eliot," by Mathilde Blind. Miss Blind visited the places connected with George Eliot's early life, and gleaned many characteristic facts from her brother, Isaac Evans, and from old people, contemporaries of her father, Robert Evans. A great part of the correspondence in the volume has not hitherto appeared in print. They will also issue on the same day the new No Name novel, "A Daughter of the Philistines;" "Gatherings from an Artist's Portfolio in Rome," by James E. Freeman;" and "A Concise English History, from the Earliest Period to the Present Time," a readable volume comprising in paragraphs every important event in the history of England, by W. M. Lupton.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish on Wednesday, the 21st, the first volume of the new Riverside edition of Shakespeare, which Richard Grant White is editing. This volume comprises the Comedies, and will be followed in April by the Histories and other poems, and in May by the Tragedies. The edition is crown octavo, with sufficiently large type, and with notes condensing into brief compass all that is necessary for the full understanding of obsolete or vague expressions. It promises to be very popular. With this will appear two new volumes in the Riverside Hawthorne, one including "The Scarlet Letter" and "The Blithedale Romance," the other "The Marble Faun;" also "Notes on the Louvre Gallery at Paris and on the Brera Gallery at Milan," by C. L. Eastlake, Keeper of the National Gallery at London, better known in America as author of "Hints on Household Taste." This book is intended as a guide-book to visitors to the two galleries above named, describing the pictures with the skill of a competent critic. It contains numerous illustrations. Other volumes to be published at the same time are "Letters, Essays and Sermons," by the late Samuel Johnson, author of two books under the general head of "Oriental Religions," with a memoir of Mr. Johnson by the Rev. Samuel Longfellow; a revised edition of Dr. Holmes' novel, "The Guardian Angel;" a new edition of Beardsley's "History of the Episcopal Church in Connecticut;" and a "History of Hardwick, Massachusetts," by Lucius R. Page, who wrote the excellent "History of Cambridge."

The scene of this story, by the popular author of "The nabob" and "Numa Roumestan," is laid in Paris, in the midst of the Scandinavian colony. A family of Danish Protestants named Ebsen are the central figures. The mother, a widow, gives lessons in English and German, and Eline, her daughter, a sweet and good girl of twenty, is organist to the chapel of the Dano-Swedish colony, and adds to her scanty income by doing translations. Madame Autheman, the wife of a rich banker, and a cold, proud, bigoted woman, using her enormous wealth in the propagandism of a hard and narrow form of religion, is the "Evangelist." One day she brings some prayers to Eline to translate, and by degrees becomes a strong influence in the young girl's life. Eline becomes infatuated with her doctrines of renunciation, and finally leaves her broken-hearted mother forever, to aid the "Evangelist" in her work of saving souls. The work is strongly written, and is designed as a protest against the operations of the Salvation Army in France, and its methods of evangelization.

It offers quite lengthy sketches of English shoemakers, including Sir Claudesley Shovel, James Lackington, Samuel Bradburn, William Gifford, Robert Bloomfield, Samuel Drew, William Carey, John Pounds, Thomas Cooper; with briefer sketches of some ancient examples, and the celebrated shoemakers of France, Germany, Italy, Holland and America; shoemakers who became military and naval heroes, astrologers, poets, preachers and theologians, scientists and politicians.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Amateur Athlete, an illustrated weekly chronicle, will be published next month by Oliver & Jenkins, N. Y., who are now publishing The Wheel.

The Periodical World, a new eclectic monthly, has just been issued by A. H. Roffe & Co., Boston. It includes selections from current foreign literature as well as original articles, and is edited by the Rev. Julius H. Ward.

The Student and Statesman is the title of a new weekly journal to be devoted to political culture and the interest of American students. It will be published by L. Kempner, 5 Clinton Place, N. Y.

The Elsevir Library, a semi-weekly magazine, is the title of a neat little series published by John B. Alden, of "Literary Revolution" notoriety. Fifteen numbers have thus far been published at two cents retail each.

The Chinese American, the first Chinese newspaper ever published in New York, has recently made its appearance. The editor, Mr. Wong Chin Foo, dictates the matter to a Chinese scribe, who in turn prints a part of it upon sheets of paper, from which it is photographed and then printed from the stone in the shape in which it is to appear.

The Grumbler, which considers itself "a journal for everybody," offers itself as a medium through which the public may effectually ventilate its grievances pertaining to the social and general welfare of the community at large. It is published by P. Pyne & Co., 42 Duane Street, N. Y.

THE Belletristisches Journal, of this city, has issued as a premium for the subscribers to the thirty-second volume a handsome and finely-printed steel portrait of Schiller, as a companion piece to the Lessing, Wagner, and Liszt issued in previous years. The Schiller portrait was engraved after the Dannecker bust by A. Krausse, of Leipzig. "This paper, by the way," says the Nation, "unites some of the best features of German and American journalism. It contains novels and essays by leading German writers, and at the same time covers the fields of American politics, literature, science, and art. The partly humorous account of New York City life from week to week is one of its most readable departments. The editor's letters from the Far West, which began to be printed last summer, would, in book-form, make a valuable addition to American tourists' literature." The publishers announce to the trade that they have still on hand some copies of the handsome Wagner portrait, which may be had at $1, less a discount.

The Publishers' Weekly.

MARCH 10, 1883.

PUBLISHERS are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

The trade are invited to send "Communications" to the editor on any topic of interest to the trade, and as to which an interchange of opinion is desirable. Also, matter for "Notes and Queries" gratefully received.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE struggle with the problem of prices is no more a distinctive feature of the American book-trade. The spirit of an age whose supreme end is commercial success is spreading over the world, and sound principles and professional proficiency are everywhere pushed to the wall by "sharp practice" and the "tricks of the trade." The PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, having from the first day of existence given its chief attention to this question, and having discussed it in all its presented phases, is willing to stand aside and leave the field to its contemporaries abroad. Its own experience has necessarily quenched the sanguine spirit of the London Bookseller, but it can appreciate how this journal has been carried away (has not the WEEKLY?) by indignation at the slaughterers of honest business and by sympathy with a suffering trade. But even now it is not as hopelessly hopeless as the Publishers' Circular, which, although at last aroused to commit itself editorially on the life-question of its trade, is so swayed by the voice of an unsympathizing press that it gives but little comfort to the bookseller.

As to the present movement, the WEEKLY agrees with the Publishers' Circular "that a combination of retail booksellers, opening its campaign by a sort of threat to the publishers, can only end in failure." The WEEKLY always has held that, without the good-will and co-operation of the publishers, the booksellers can practically accomplish nothing. It says, with the Bookseller, "that from the publishers no help is to be looked for, until the retail dealers show themselves capable"—not—"of organized revolt," but of organized action. The Booksellers' Union will probably go the way of the American Book-Trade Association. The cause will be the same—lack of strength and unity of purpose. Still one false start, even of a strong organized movement, is no proof against organization, just as a start, in the right direction, of a weak organization will be no earnest of success. Reforms are not forced by threats or surprises; they must be contested for step by step, and there can be no contest without organized force. The reform of civil service was decried for generations—will it be a chimera to the next generation? The WEEKLY believes that there will be in business an awakening of conscience and common-sense such as is now going on in the political world, but, under existing circumstances, such an awakening can be accomplished only by organization. Yet no organization that is moved by a spirit of selfish instead of common interests possesses perseverance enough to carry conviction. There is work for a new American Book Trade Association. The failure of the first, and the probable failure of the proposed Booksellers' Union, should not disprove this, but be a lesson.

THE BOOKSELLERS' UNION.

From the London Bookseller, Feb. 3.

THE proposal of a Booksellers' Union has awakened the keenest interest throughout the trade. We have received numerous letters from booksellers in different parts of the country, announcing their willingness to support the scheme. Some of these we have printed, but by far the larger number are of a personal character, unsuited for publication. There is, however, a cordial unanimity of opinion that the time is ripe for concerted action. We hope to hear from many other members of the trade before the end of the current month. No pledge of any kind whatever—and we desire to emphasize this—is implied by the intimation of willingness to promote the formation of a Union. All that is required at this stage is to bring into communication with each other a sufficiently influential nucleus which will decide what course will best recommend itself to the majority of the trade. We have already received more than the number of responses suggested by "Onward in Honor," as sufficient for a beginning, but before printing the list, although it includes several of the best-known names in the trade, we should be glad to see it strengthened by several hundred more. We fully understand that motives of prudence may cause some to hesitate until the scheme assumes more definite shape, but it must be obvious that if all were equally timid there would be no beginning. We do not expect all the trade to join, for, under present circumstances, we recognize the fact that it would be impossible to frame a constitution to which all could subscribe. But we sincerely believe if one thousand booksellers throughout the country would hold together, they might speedily make for themselves a position high above the assaults of Underselling and Cheap Jacks. One thousand booksellers would afford an adequate distributing medium for all the best books that are published. They might bind themselves to sell no book that was supplied to the underselling non-unionists, whether direct from the publisher or through the wholesale houses, and by that means obtain control of the books of the best publishers. These they could afford to stock, and the public would soon learn that the real literature of the country could only be obtained from the booksellers, and not from the mere dealers. The fact once established that the best books of the day could not be bought for less than the published prices, by breaking in upon the present uniformity of discount to purchasers, would be a boon even to the sellers of cheap literature, as there would no longer be a fixed basis on which discount could be demanded. We do not, however, regard undersellers as a class by themselves. Although not openly and universally practised until of late years, no special class of booksellers are answerable for underselling. Prices and discounts ought to have been adjusted long before the paper duty was repealed, and before books came to be manufactured and sold by the ton. If a thousand booksellers could be induced to act in concert, the undersellers, if any voluntary undersellers really exist, would, by degrees, find it expedient to join the association.

From the publishers no help is to be looked for, until the retail traders show themselves capable of organized revolt. The breeches pocket is the only sensitive point of attack in commercial diplomacy, and the moment it can be made evident that it would be more profitable to support a Union than to ignore it, the publishers will do so with avidity. More than one of our correspondents has insisted that nothing can be done without the aid of the publishers. We venture to differ from this view of the case, as we believe the booksellers have the power entirely in their own hands, if they would but combine to exercise it. We have good reason to know that many publishers who would be only too glad of a combination among the retail trade, cannot afford to jeopardize their interests by initiatory action. Let it be plainly demonstrated what reforms are needful to enable a bookseller to keep the best class of books always in stock, and the publishers will be ready enough to meet them. But to accomplish this, a Union is the only means.

The public is a factor which must not be overlooked, as it would be fatal to any scheme if the idea obtained currency that reform meant extravagantly high prices to purchasers. On the other hand, the facts disclosed by "A Lancashire Bookseller" reveal a state of affairs that cannot long continue. To make no more than 5 per cent on a turnover of £6000 a year is probably without parallel in any other branch of trade. The capital employed in such a business might as profitably be invested in consols. The wonderful fascination which books seem to exercise over those who have been long associated with them is the only way to account for such phenomenal attachment to an unremunerative business. Even if the profits of "A Lancashire Bookseller" were doubled, the most rigid economist would scarcely venture to say they were excessive. Excepting three-volume novels and a few other books which it is customary to publish at ridiculously artificial prices, and with which the ordinary bookseller has small concern, we do not think the public would be really affected by the change. If underselling could be abolished altogether, selling prices and discounts might be reduced without hardship to the retailer or the producer.

Changes to be permanent must be gradual. Sudden and radical reform is out of the question. It would be childish to expect, at the latter end of the nineteenth century, a sudden retrograde movement to the customs of Curll and Tonson. Abuses of recent growth are soonest remedied. The assurance of victory is the best recruiting-sergeant, and if the opinion of the trade is too broken up and distracted to deal with larger questions, let it concentrate itself to destroy smaller fungi. The youngest and most odious of these is the supply of drapers and other non-members of the fraternity. A strong expression of opinion on this subject has already had a beneficial effect, but, by its inertness, the trade has suffered the abuse to grow until it has become almost a custom. What publisher, after a note of warning from the Booksellers' Union, would henceforth venture to supply drapers?

From the Publishers' Circular, Feb. 15.

THERE is nothing new under the sun, and a Booksellers' Union is by no means a new thing. History repeats itself, sometimes with variations, and our contemporary, the Bookseller, has published a mass of correspondence, chiefly from country booksellers, which certainly goes far to prove that literary ability is by no means extinct, as has sometimes been asserted, among the present race of booksellers. Many of these correspondents seem to write, however, as though they were quite unaware that a Booksellers' Union existed more than thirty years ago. The difference between that "Union" and the present suggested one appears to be that the old "Union" was a combination of publishers and booksellers against undersellers; protection against free trade was then the question. This new "Union," so far as we can gather its views from the correspondence, and the Bookseller's editorial summing-up, is a sort of three-cornered crusade of retail booksellers against undersellers, with an added threat of coercion against publishers.

The old Union was one which applied more especially to the London trade (with offshoots in Edinburgh and Glasgow); the vice of underselling as a general rule in the country not having at that time spread so widely as at present. Then publishers and booksellers combined, and for a time worked well together; no one being recognized as a bookseller who could not produce in his collecting-book the trade ticket which had been issued to him on the distinct agreement that he would not undersell. In spite, however, of these regulations, underselling flourished somehow, and it is perhaps not too much to say that many leading booksellers of the present day (now strong advocates for protection) owe the foundation of their success to their free trade proclivities in days gone by. It was doubtless owing to their cry of Free Trade that the Times took up their cause vigorously, as the cause of the public against monopoly, and the public, having once tasted the sweets of this mis-called free trade, would no longer be baulked of its assumed rights. The result was, that the question of the right and justice of a Booksellers' Union, to protect their own interests, was submitted to the arbitration of a very high tribunal, of which Lord Campbell, Dean Milman, and Mr. Grote were principal members, and the decision of these eminent men was decidedly in favor of free trade in books, on the ground that a bookseller, having once purchased a book, was quite free to sell at whatever price he pleased, and that he should not be coerced by the seller. The consequence was, the Union was broken up in 1852, and from that time to this the fight has been an open one.

Now the question which naturally suggests itself to one first is this: "If, at a time when underselling was in its infancy, the public, backed by the highest legal and literary authority, was unable to break up what it chose to regard as a monopoly, what possible chance can there be now to stem the tide, when every book-buyer in the kingdom has become habituated to receive twopence or threepence discount in the shilling as a matter of course?"

Without in the least desiring to discourage the many energetic and intelligent booksellers who seem now to be so laudably desirous of protecting their own interests, we feel bound to regard their project as herculean if not utopian, and we must frankly say that we cannot regard the method which seems to find most favor among them, viz., coercion of publishers, as the one most likely to bring about satisfactory results.

Thirty years ago there were more than 1200 booksellers in London alone. Now that number must have very largely increased. How, then, one would like to ask, would a combination of one thousand "good men, and true," gathered from all parts of the United Kingdom (as suggested by the Bookseller and its correspondents), be likely to bring any material weight to bear upon any sinning publisher? This one thousand channels being sternly closed to him, would he not find ten thousand others wide open? Apart from this view of the matter, one cannot help thinking that this lofty way of ignoring publishers may by some be regarded as a perfectly needless and useless affront.

It is easier to find fault with a project than to suggest one; and indeed what project is there possible which has not at one time or another, in the midst of innumerable conflicting interests, been "weighed and found wanting"?

If one suggests the abolition of a published price as a panacea advantageous alike to publisher and bookseller—to the publisher because it is supposed to compel a bookseller to keep the book in stock to show his customer, and to a bookseller because he can fix his own price and insure a fair profit—to this will arise at once a thousand objectors. But chiefly would it affect the operations of wholesale dealers, whose system of book-keeping would be revolutionized.

If it is suggested that one fixed discount of 20 or 25 per cent shall be allowed to the trade in all cases alike, then what do the wholesale dealers say? What would Messrs. Smith & Son say? They, perhaps the largest book distributors in the country, tell us now that 40 per cent is barely enough to induce them to keep books on their stalls, although they make no allowance to the public whatever.

If a graduated scale is suggested—so much to wholesalers, so much to retailers, so much to schools, to clergymen, libraries, etc., etc.—then no end of loopholes are admitted through which the very object of the Union would be easily frustrated.

In short, the difficulties are endless; and while we should be well pleased to see some scheme propounded that, taken in all its bearings, could be regarded as a sure step in the direction of protecting the interests of retail booksellers, we feel bound to repeat our conviction that a combination of retail booksellers, opening its campaign by a sort of threat to the publishers, can only end in failure. While we can hardly believe that in these times a combination of publishers and booksellers to effect the desired object would be likely to succeed, we would certainly deprecate any step likely to create or widen a breach, or in the least disturb the good feeling which ought to exist between publishers and booksellers. The latter may rest assured that publishers do not in these competitive times repose on beds of roses: they have their own competitors all round them. The arguments brought to bear upon Lord Campbell and the other arbitrators thirty years ago are precisely the same as those which justify the claim for protection now. Their decision was not law; it could only be regarded as an authoritative opinion; it might perhaps then have been resisted or disregarded, and protection strongly persisted in. But public opinion was also against the trade, and they gave in; and having once succumbed, the power of retracing their steps seems almost as hopeless as would be a cry for a return of the Corn Laws.

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT.*

TO THE EDITOR OF THE EVENING POST.

SIR: I have already trespassed unduly on your space, but I trust may yet be allowed a few words to correct what seem to be material misapprehensions on the part of the writer of the article on "Old and New Pirates," in the Evening Post of Monday.

The Evening Post assumes that the publishers have, as a body, persistently opposed international copyright, and that the only influence that can bring them to a sense of equity and decency is the sharp competition of the cheap libraries. While this competition may very possibly have influenced the opinions of one or more houses, it is certainly the case that by far the larger number of the publishing firms have persistently favored a copyright, and many of these, for years before the "libraries" came into existence, were doing active work in connection with the attempts to secure it. It is not, therefore, correct to speak of the publishers as a class as needing "conversion" on this point. I may be excused for referring in this connection, to the fact that as early as 1838 the late George P. Putnam wrote and printed a "Plea for an International Copyright," which was an argument for the freest possible "authors' measure."

The Evening Post is in error in understanding that the treaty now in the State Department provides that an English work, to secure protection, must be "entirely remanufactured" in this country. The provision reads that it must be printed and bound here, the privilege being accorded of importing duplicates of the English plates and electros of English cuts. The clause, as it stands, represents a compromise between the opinions of firms like my own, which desired an unrestricted copyright, and the extreme protectionist views of the Philadelphians. It was further understood by the signers to the petition that opportunity would be given for full consideration and discussion of all the provisions of the proposed treaty.

So far from presenting "a rosy picture" of the honorarium system or claiming that it afforded a "complete protection," I expressly stated that it was most "unsatisfactory," and referred to it simply as an arrangement under which honorable traders did what lay in their power, without the aid or protection of law (and apparently, if the Evening Post is a fair exponent, without the support of public opinion), to make provisional remedy for a recognized evil until some permanent remedy could be secured.

In calculating that "three fourths" of the books reprinted are by "new or unknown authors," the Evening Post is, I am confident, in error. The proportion I should not place higher than from one fourth to one third. Of the 200 reprints on the catalogue of my own house (which have, I may mention, been duly paid for), the proportion appears to be about one third. But the assumption that the publishers "usually pirate" such "first" books is not borne out by the facts. They are regularly paid for by the class of publishers of whom I speak, the probable value being estimated as nearly as may be possible; or, if the payment is by royalty, the amount is, of course, proportioned to the actual sales. The "New Republic," "Vice Versâ," "Merv," Bird's "Rocky Mountains," Arnold's "Light of Asia," are recent instances from a very long list.

In speaking of the methods of publishers I referred, for the sake of accuracy, to occasional "exceptions." But to apply, by reason of such exceptions, bad names indiscriminately to the publishers as a class is, I submit, about as reasonable as it would be, on the ground of one or two flagrant examples, to characterize the daily press of New York as notoriously low-toned and libellous.

GEO. HAVEN PUTNAM.

NEW YORK, February 6, 1883.

[Whether it is fair to call Mr. Putnam's picture of the honorarium system "rosy" or not may best be judged by comparing it with the account given by the Royal Commission as the result of an independent and impartial examination of the evidence which we have already quoted once. This is what the Commission said on the subject:

"We are assured that there are cases in which authors reap substantial results from these arrangements," and "instances are even known in which an English author's returns from the United States exceed the profits of his British sale; but in the case of a successful book by a new author it would appear that this understanding affords no protection. Even in the case of eminent men, we have no reason to believe that the arrangements possible under the existing conditions are at all equivalent to the returns which they would secure under a copyright convention."

Mr. Putnam overlooks the fact that all arrangements made with a foreign author, in the absence of legal protection, are made with the dread of piracy before his eyes if he does not take what is offered, and that the publisher on his side must, as a rule, take this same danger into account. The mere fact of an honorarium being paid does not tell us much unless we know how much would have been paid if there had been an international copyright system. This, of course, we cannot know; but we are forced by the reasons which we have given to infer that the returns from the honorarium system to the foreign author were far less than he would have got had he been protected. The difference was the measure of the piracy committed and encouraged by us. That some publishers, including Mr. Putnam's firm, have been always in favor of complete protection we are well aware; but that, as a class, it was the publishers who profited by the system seems to be beyond dispute, no matter what the proportion of new books to old. Many publishers have "favored a copyright" in general—how many we do not know; but it was always safe to do this, and the wicked ones invariably managed in some way to defeat the "particular measure" that was proposed. If publishers generally have been working as hard for international copyright as Mr. Putnam seems to think, it is surprising that they have effected so little. We shall continue, however, to encourage them in the good work. —ED. Evening Post.]

A MEETING of the English executive committee of the International Literary Association was held at Marlborough Chambers, Pall-mall, under the presidency of Mr. Blanchard Jerrold, chairman. Mr. Jerrold, in submitting a draft of the programme of the sixth annual congress of the association, to be held at Amsterdam next September, during the Dutch Universal Exhibition, remarked that the congress would be preceded by a conference at Berne, composed of delegates from the various literary societies of Europe, which would frame a project for a universal literary copyright law. This project would be submitted to the congress in September for ratification. At the same time the executive of the association would have important communications to make on the Hungarian and Swiss copyright laws, together with papers on the contemporary literatures of various countries. The chairman also announced that the Dutch Government was prepared to give the members of the association who might attend the congress a cordial reception, and that the committee would shortly make known all the conditions and arrangements effected at Amsterdam for the convenience of persons attending the congress.

BUSINESS NOTES.

CHICAGO, ILL.—Gustav Hinstorff has succeeded Wm. Floto in the foreign book and stationery business located at 48 Dearborn Street.

DELAWARE, O.—Mr. L. S. Wells informs us that he has not sold out his book and stationery business, as was announced by us in our issue of February 24.

DETROIT, MICH.—W. L. Berry & Co., booksellers and stationers, have sold out to Gorton, Blewett & Co.

PITTSBURGH, PA.—Henry Bodner, stationer and newsdealer, has sold out to Peter Raeder.

ST. JOSEPH, MO.—E. E. Phelps and T. E. Bryant, both of Kansas City, have formed a partnership, and under the firm-name of Phelps & Bryant become the successors of Woolworth & McPherson, booksellers, newsdealers, and stationers. The members of the new concern were connected with M. H. Dickinson, of Kansas City, for a long time, Mr. Phelps as manager of the business outside the office for over six years, and Mr. Bryant as head of the office for ten years. They bring to the aid of an already established business an experience, taste, and energy which will insure success. Mr. Phelps, although a young man, has been in his present line of business for eighteen years.

WICHITA, KAN.—L. N. Woodcock, bookseller and stationer, has sold out to Samuel Winch.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

A TRANSLATION of Hiawatha into Greek verse has just been made at Leipsic.

THE next volume in the Golden Treasury series will be selections from Cowper's poems, arranged by Mrs. Oliphant.

MR. LOUIS KEMPNER, 5 Clinton Place, N. Y., has compiled from the Nation the principal contributions to the discussion over "Unpunished Homicide at the South."

MR. FRANCIS PARKMAN's pamphlet, "Some of the Reasons against Woman Suffrage," has been reprinted "at the request of an association of women" in and about Boston.

H. A. SUMNER & Co. write us that the advance orders for "The Red Acorn," by John McElroy, of the Toledo Blade, thus far received amount to 2000 copies, and several large cities yet to hear from.

CASSELL, PETTER, GALPIN & Co. are making arrangements to issue next month, in serial form, a popular edition of Cassell's Doré Gallery, containing 250 of the finest of Doré's drawings, with descriptive letterpress.

THE three articles in the Quarterly Review by Dean Burgon, on the Revision of the New Testament, are to be published in book-form under the title "The Revision Revised." A reply to Bishop Ellicott's criticism of the articles will be added.

S. E. CASSINO & Co. have in preparation a new edition of Thomas Say's "Description of the Insects of North America," which has long been out of print. Entirely new plates will be made from careful drawings, and these will be colored by hand.

CLARKE BROTHERS, Bible House, N. Y., will issue shortly a new volume by Dr. Dio Lewis, entitled "In a Nutshell—Suggestions to American College Students." The volume contains much common-sense put in the doctor's terse and unmistakable language.

T. B. PETERSON & BROS. inform us that they have not yet published the new society novel, "Those Pretty St. George Girls." It is still in the printer's hands but may be expected before long. The book is written by a well-known society lady of New York City.

GEORGE H. ELLIS expects to issue late this month or early in April "The Modern Sphinx and some of her Problems," by Rev. Minot J. Savage; "Darwinism in Morals," and other essays, by Frances Power Cobbe; and "Jesus—his Opinions and Character," the result of New Testament studies by a layman.

THE PEOPLE'S PUBLISHING CO. announce Primers for the People, edited by Eugene L. Didier. The following will be issued at once: "A Primer of American History;" "A Primer of Politeness;" "A Primer of Health;" "A Primer of Wealth;" "A Primer of Literature;" and "A Primer of Criticism."

A. WILLIAMS & Co. have just issued, by arrangement with Mr. Notman, a cabinet photograph of Hawthorne. The negative is made from a daguerreotype by Whipple, which has been recently discovered, and of which only two copies were ever made. It is considered a more faithful and characteristic likeness than any hitherto issued, either in photograph or engraving.

ROBERT CARTER & BROS. have in preparation "Next-door Neighbors," another interesting volume by Agnes Giberne; "Not for Him," by Emily S. Holt; and a volume by Dr. Macduff entitled "Early Graves." They have also in press a description by William Walta of the "Life and Labors of Dr. Robert Moffatt," the celebrated Scotch missionary to South Africa and father-in-law of Dr. Livingstone the explorer.

WE desire to call the attention of our readers to the fact that MacIntosh's "White Sunlight of Potent Words," Pittenger's "Extempore Speech," and "Practical Elocution," are published by the National School of Elocution and Oratory, 1416 and 1418 Chestnut St., Philadelphia. By an oversight they were credited to N. Y. School of Oratory, in our Supplement to the Educational Catalogue as published in our issue for February 24.

E. CLAXTON & Co., Philadelphia, have in preparation a new imperial octavo edition of the complete dramatic and poetical works of Lord Byron, uniform with their Avon edition of Shakspeare, which they will publish as the Newstead edition, and hope to have ready for the fall trade. The text will be from the latest and most approved English editions, and the volume will contain a complete life of the poet by Prof. J. Nichols, and numerous full-page illustrations.

J. FAGAN & SON, Philadelphia, have nearly ready a new edition of Drs. Angus' and Hoyt's "Bible Hand-book: An Introduction to the Study of Sacred Scripture." The volume contains portraits of eminent Protestant church leaders, and nearly 300 illustrations from photographs and original sketches of Eastern scenes and objects noted in biblical history, together with map of Palestine and a colored map of the known world at the time of Christ; also short illustrated historical sketches of coinage and money connected with the Scripture narrative, by F. W. Madden, Department of Coins in the British Museum, and Secretary of the Numismatic Society.

"ELZEVIR" writes to the Boston Herald in relation to the Du Chaillu-Harper suit: "The action brought by Mr. P. B. Du Chaillu against the Messrs. Harper & Bros. to recover damages for alleged losses caused him by an insufficient supply of his book, 'The Land of the Midnight Sun,' in the market, raises a new question between publisher and author, and one it will be well to have settled. Mr. Du Chaillu is a peppery little man, who thinks himself little short of Christopher Columbus. He is very hard to get along with, and the only wonder is that the Harpers have not had trouble with him before this. They have, on the contrary, been great friends with him, and really made a pet of him, and this is their reward. If Mr. Du Chaillu had not had such an excellent opinion of himself he would know that a large part of the demand for his book, which he claims was not supplied, was created by the pushing and liberal advertising of the Messrs. Harper. The consequence was that 8000 copies of the book were sold here during the past year, and 2000 in London. This absence of the book from the market was only for a few days at the holiday time, when it was impossible to supply the unexpected demand. Mr. Du Chaillu forgets that Harper & Bros. publish other books than his, and other authors might have just cause for complaint if their works were taken off the press in his favor. I heard a veteran publisher say the other day, that the most unreasonable person in the world was the successful author, and his experience had taught him this truth."

WILLIAM WOOD & Co. have in preparation a "Text-book of Medical Chemistry," by Dr. R. A. Witthaus; "Surgical Gynecology," a text-book of the operative treatment of the diseases of women, by Dr. Paul F. Mundé, Professor of Gynecology and Obstetrics at the New York Polyclinic; "Diseases of the Eye," a treatise written with special view to the needs of the general practitioner, by Dr. Henry D. Noyes; "An Index of Medicine," by Dr. W. M. Carpenter, which promises to be a most important aid to the physician; "Therapeutic Hand-book of the United States Pharmacopœia," a condensed statement of the physiological and toxic action, medicinal value, methods of administration and doses of the drugs and preparations in the latest edition of the United States Pharmacopœia, with some remarks on unofficial preparations, by Dr. Robert T. Edes; "Types of Insanity," an illustrated guide to the physical diagnosis of mental disease, by Dr. Allan McLane Hamilton; and an Index Review for the use of physicians and others. The third volume of the "International Encyclopædia of Surgery" may be expected shortly.

THE VERY BEST BIBLE

in this or any other country is our Brown's Self-interpreting Bible. And the demand that has sprung up for it proves that its excellence is being appreciated by two classes of people—the bookselling and the bookbuying class. Now, there are plenty of Bibles—if not more than the sand on the seashore, at least more than we care to number. What, then, has made our Brown's Bible so popular? Nothing but its excellence and elegance. And wherein does that consist?

Well, first of all, it is an elegant book outside. We make six styles, full gilt, panelled sides, very handsome and elegant. But we wish to call your attention especially to our London Antique binding. This style has stimulated imitators everywhere. Can gold be imitated, and the counterfeit not be detected? Neither can the imitators quite come up to the chaste beauty of our original bindings. They come very near sometimes; and yet, after you once see our book, you could pick it out of a hundred.

Contents. First of all, excellent paper, large type for the text, and clear cut letters for the references and notes. For this Brown contains notes, critical and explanatory, by Rev. JOHN BROWN; several thousand more, by the celebrated Rev. Dr. HENRY COOKE, still more by Rev. Dr. J. L. PORTER, and still others by Rev. Dr. WILLIAM BLACKWOOD, LL.D. But of this later.

There is one important fact that we desire to impress upon your mind in connection with this book, and that is the beautiful margin. Now, we do not know whether you admire a generous margin or not. Some people don't like a margin to their Bibles; others do. Admirers of handsome books give us great praise for this. We believe in giving plenty of Bible and a good margin—both of paper and on price. The latter is orthodox, anyhow, isn't it?

Well, there are the NOTES; which are, first, sensible and explain difficulties only; and, secondly, are helpful, giving just the aid one wants in understanding the Word of God; and, lastly, are edifying, which cannot be—but we are not criticising other people's books now.

VALUABLE FEATURES.

A PICTORIAL HISTORY of the Books of the Bible is found here. This is a grand feature. There is CHRIST AND HIS KINGDOM IN SHADOWS, by Rev. Chas. P. Krauth, D.D., LL.D., one of this able theologian's latest and best works. Handsomely illustrated. Another grand feature. There is NEVIN'S BIBLE DICTIONARY (illustrated). What bookseller does not see the great advantage of this feature? The next grand feature.

There is BLACKWOOD'S COMPREHENSIVE AIDS. Now, try it! Examine any other Bible you please, and find in this one feature alone everything found in the features of every other Bible. We are modest; we will only call this another grand feature.

There is the LIFE OF CHRIST AND HIS APOSTLES, with new engravings.—You are bewildered? Recover yourself, for when you see this book you will have need of firmness if you are so easily overcome.

Of course the Bible is elegantly illustrated—12 full-page fine steel line engravings, and a full complement of chromo illuminations. And we will not say more about it to-day.

But keep an eye on our new work, BALDWIN'S ENGLISH LITERATURE. Your customers will appreciate your efforts in supplying them with the best on this subject. Catalogues can always be had.

The Literary News

Owes its new dress to its growing popularity, and this to its faithful fulfilment of its programme. This is to present a survey of the new books in a manner that, at an hour's reading, enables any one to make a discriminate selection of books for himself or his friends, or to converse intelligently on the literary topics of the day. This is done by devoting its space to good books only; by wasting none on poor ones; by quoting only from recognized authorities; by selecting with an aim not merely to guide by a "praise of books," but by awakening an interest in their contents, in their relation to literature, and last, not least, in their authors. This personal element, indeed, makes the LITERARY NEWS so genial and readable. If in its endeavors to promote Good Home Reading it must confess to an inclination for appreciative commendation rather than disparaging criticism, it springs from the conviction, which is the foundation of the LITERARY NEWS, that home reading cannot be too warmly encouraged, that too much is better than too little, that the time spent on reading, the money spent on the purchase of books, must finally prove a good investment, even should one occasionally err in choice and judgment and pay too high a price for a book which happens to be "the fashion."

Therefore the very object of the LITERARY NEWS makes it, pre-eminently, a "bookselling" paper, and booksellers, either by using its imprint editions or by obtaining individual subscriptions, not only serve the interests of good literature, but, at the same time, their own. Price of subscription, $1 per annum. Special terms, to the trade only, for new subscriptions, or for imprint editions.
